Chapter 1 by Owen Wallace

Who are you?

A question I face every day. Who are you? What is your purpose? Why are you here? are just some of these regular questions for me. They may seem a bit depressing but my life is an oxymoron. I am happily sad. I am optimistically pessimistic. I'm lovingly depressed. But people just call me crazy, that's not my name of course my name is Logan and I'm different.

Lets have an introduction to me, would you like that? Well of course you would why am i even asking?

I dont sleep, I live on about 2 to 3 hours each day because sleep is torture to me. instead I hallucinate my nightmares everyday. you want to know what they are? you couldnt handle them. It would most likely scare you to death... But not me, I have no heart, I'm different.

I can tell how a person is deep down with just a small conversation. I try not to use it for powers that are not good. I tried playing god, it got boring. But I might have to now

Life is too short to not care about other people. I suffer while others are happy from me. I'm the shoulder people cry on. Life is a roller coaster. When you die you fall in. The splash you make is your effect on people. I want to be a boulder not a pebble. Even if I am a hollow boulder, I still get the same effect.
